FYI

- Investigators should keep in mind that during this time of summer vacations and holidays, it is especially important that all proposals be routed through RAMSeS to reach the Office of Sponsored Research or the Sponsored Programs Office at least five business days before the published due dates. Special consideration must be given to deadlines that are close to holidays (e. g., the Fourth of July holiday falls the day before the July 5 receipt date for R01/U01 resubmissions and revisions). Also note that after an application has been assembled on the eRA Commons, NIH allows project directors, principal investigators, and university signing officials a two-day window (including weekday holidays) to view and correct the application before it is forwarded for study section review.
- The OSR reorganization webpage has been updated since last week's DOM newsletter. It now includes a more detailed
