Course Description and Target Audience

HIV care changes rapidly as new therapies emerge and the epidemic changes. For example, in 2008, the CDC re-estimated that the incidence of HIV in the US was 40% higher than previous estimates. Additionally, travel to national and international meetings for HIV/AIDS information is not possible for many providers whereas state travel is far more feasible. This symposium will bring state-of-the-art HIV care information to the providers who need it. The content will include new medications, new interventions and new problems for HIV care. The target audience is physicians, nurse practitioners, physician assistants, primary caregivers, pharmacists, nurses, psychologists, case managers, counselors, social workers, substance abuse professionals, and specialists who have 2 or more patients with HIV. Each of these topics will be dealt with in short, concise talks with practical information for clinicians. There will be two parallel sessions and participants must specify in advance the primary session. The substance abuse and mental health sessions will be useful for clinicians and case managers, physicians, pharmacists, and nurses.

If you are new to the management of HIV, you may wish to view HIV 101 before the symposium.
