Improved patient safety by simulator based training in cardiac surgery

Goal: This multi-institution project will study whether resident physicians who are learning cardiothoracic surgery can become safer surgeons by using surgery simulators to acquire skills before they operate on people.

Role: PI

*Two one-year no-cost extensions.

AHEC Innovation Grant (Feins, PI) 7/1/2015-6/30/2016 No salary support

Remote video-assisted simulation training

Goal: This study will demonstrate the potential of an innovative approach to standardizing, conducting, evaluating and maximizing high-quality simulation-based training to teach surgery skills through the use of remote interactive video mentoring. The training will be done at six institutions in North Carolina that train general surgery residents.

Multi-lumen steerable needles for transoral access to lung nodules

Goal: Develop robotic set of concentric nested titanium tubes that can be deployed from bronchoscope to allow physicians to accurately reach areas of the lung.

Role: Investigator

Thoracic resection simulation $18,000 (No salary support)

This project will design an improved second-generation simulator for teaching skills for open and thoracoscopic lung resections. It will create a curriculum for this simulator, including a handbook; modify metrics used to assess technical skill within the simulated environment; evaluate transferability of skills; and determine and report the real cost of teaching in a simulated environment.

A double-blind, randomized, placebo-controlled Phase III study to assess the efficacy of recMAGE-A3 + AS15 Antigen-Specific Cancer Immunotherapeutic as adjuvant therapy in patients with resectable MAGE-A3-positive Non-Small Cell Lung Cancer

The primary objective of this Phase III study is to demonstrate the clinical efficacy of recMAGE-A3 + AS15 versus placebo in NSCLC after complete surgical resection.
