Additional Comments:
I created a partnership with this NGO first between my 1st and 2nd years of medical school and continued to work with them through my MPH year. The experiences were incredibly rewarding, and I am very grateful for the flexibility and financial support that UNC provided which allowed me to carry out my research efforts and fieldwork experience. I would encourage students who are interested in global health to think outside the box of "traditional" clinical experiences in foreign countries and seek out opportunities that have a multidisciplinary approach to real-world, complex issues (i.e. public health and medicine, non-profit partnerships, development sector, entrepreneurship, etc). These experiences will undoubtedly make all of us better communicators, more sensitive clinicians, and humble individuals.
