MHG Global Primary Care, Uganda Site Director
Request for Applications

The Massachusetts General Hospital (MGH) Center for Global Health and Department of Medicine is seeking a talented and dedicated physician to serve as the Uganda Site Director for its Global Primary Care (GPC) Program.

The Center for Global Health (CGH) leverages the Mass General’s rich, 200-year legacy of leadership and innovation to build long-term, generation-spanning relationships and programs that improve the health and well-being of the world’s most vulnerable populations and prepare tomorrow’s health leaders, educators, and innovators.

Within the MGH Department of Medicine, the GPC Program integrates the principles and practice of global health and primary healthcare to develop future leaders to advance health equity and strengthen health systems in the U.S. and around the world. The GPC Program has five components: a four-year training program in internal medicine and global health at MGH; a curriculum highlighting best practices in health care delivery from a range of countries around the world; service partnerships in the greater Boston-area and Uganda focused on vulnerable populations and addressing health disparities; and an opportunity for MGH Primary Care faculty to learn from and contribute to GPC’s work in Uganda.

As the full-time on-site representative in Uganda, the GPC Uganda Site Director will support the vision and mission of the GPC Program, the MGH Center for Global Health, and the MGH Department of Medicine. The Site Director will support all components of the GPC Program and will lead the development and evolution of those elements based in Uganda. The Site Director’s responsibilities will include clinical care, medical education, mentorship, administration, program leadership, and research. The Site Director will also be expected to integrate and expand GPC initiatives within MGH’s Global Health Collaborative, a partnership between the MGH Center for Global Health and Mbarara University of Science and Technology. The position will be based in Mbarara and travel to our rural health clinic partner site in Bugoye will be expected several times per year.

The successful candidate will have completed residency training in internal medicine, family practice, or medicine/pediatrics, and be Board certified/eligible. Previous international clinical or academic experience required. Training in Tropical Medicine or Public Health, preferred. A Massachusetts Medical License will be required. Salary commensurate to experience, full benefits and relocation stipend provided.
