THE RESPONSIBILITY TO PROVIDE HOPE

Chances are you know someone with a disability.

An estimated 651 million people worldwide live with disabilities according to the World Health Organization. The lives of these individuals would improve significantly with rehabilitation doctors, also called physiatrists. However, physiatrists are rare in the United States, and in many other countries this specialty does not exist.

UNC Physical Medicine & Rehabilitation provides hope by restoring every patient to a life that is as full and rewarding as possible. Our mission – and our passion – is to maximize functional abilities, minimize secondary conditions and improve overall quality of life along the journey to recovery.

We invite you to partner with us in this devotion to duty.

- Establish a patient care scholarship fund for individuals who need help with equipment costs, daily living expenses and prescription needs
- Enhance educational training of our residents, the future generation of physiatrists
- Train our staff in new techniques to ensure that our patients are being exposed to the latest advances in rehabilitation medicine
