

UNC Department of Emergency Medicine Academic Award

April 25th, 2019

The UNC Department of Emergency Medicine has created an Academic Award to support the development, presentation, and dissemination of academic work. Funding is available to cover or defray the cost of these activities. Individuals may request up to $3,000 to cover specific research-related costs, as outlined below.

- Conference registration
- Poster creation and printing
- Travel costs including room and meals to present papers at conferences or other scholarly meetings
- Publication fees
- Data acquisition fees

Who may apply: All emergency medicine faculty, APPs, fellows, and residents are eligible for the award. Department staff and UNC students may apply in partnership with department personnel. Individuals who have access to CME funds will be expected to use all of their CME prior to the award or have allocated their CME to be spent during the academic year .

Awards will be granted on the merit of the application and its potential to advance EM research and departmental careers. The award committee will take into consideration each applicant's level of training and experience.

Applications will be reviewed on a rolling basis by a review committee consisting of EM faculty (including both clinicians and researchers) and at least one EM resident.

When to apply: Applications will be accepted on a rolling basis throughout the year. Applicants will be informed of the decision within 3 weeks of applying.

Award amount: While applicants may request up to $3,000, the total amount will be determined by the award committee.

If awarded:

Award recipients will submit a brief summary of activities supported by the award work (e.g., slides, manuscript) with the review committee. Please e-mail to emawards@med.unc.edu within 3 months of work completion.
