

Do you or your loved one have aphasia?

Our team of clinicians and researchers is studying:

- recovery of communication problems following stroke
- impact of a person's stroke on the health status and quality of life of their loved ones

We are enrolling participants for a research study assessing communication and life activities in:

- persons with communication problems due to stroke (aphasia)
- friends and family members of stroke survivors

If you or someone you know would like to know more about these studies, please contact us at card@med.unc.edu or 919-843-3699.

Center for Aphasia
and Related Disorders

