Esophagus 2017

(CME COURSE)

FEBRUARY 4, 2017

UNC Friday Center

COURSE DESCRIPTION

This educational activity will provide an evidence-based, multidisciplinary update on the latest diagnostic and therapeutic approaches to esophageal diseases, and will allow dialogue between learners and experts so questions are answered.

LEARNING OBJECTIVES

1. Implement the latest recommendations for diagnosis and treatment of common esophageal conditions, including gastroesophageal reflux disease, esophageal motility disorders and cancer.
2. Identify special cases and patient types where diagnosis and treatment of esophageal disease requires special considerations.
3. Review new treatments where practice is evolving or controversies exist.
