All female patients, ages 12-60 years are to wear a breast shield when they undergo chest CT studies. The scout CT is performed without the breast shield, and then the breast shield is applied after the scout, prior to the diagnostic scan. Use of the breast shield dramatically reduces, by approximately 35%, the radiation dose to the breast, one of the most radiation sensitive organs in the body, without substantially affecting image quality.

Richard Semelka