

Advancing Rural Health

BLENDING THE BLUES invites you to attend an interprofessional seminar examining the healthcare workforce needs of rural North Carolina

In North Carolina, 82 out of 100 counties are identified as having a primary care provider shortage and 59 counties lack primary care, dental, and behavioral health resources. In order to reach our goals for a healthy North Carolina, we must approach our health care system from multiple angles. Join rural health experts from across NC to discuss ways to collaborate for collective impact and tackle this need together.

Keynote Address by Giselle Corbie-Smith, MD, MSc

Director of the Center for Health Equity Research and Kenan Distinguished Professor of Social Medicine at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill

Wednesday, January 23rd, 2019

Health Sciences Library | 2nd Floor
335 S. Columbia Street, Chapel Hill, N C

8:30 am welcome breakfast

9:00 am presentation and panel discussion followed by small group discussion from 11:00 am to 12:00 pm

RSVP here: Rural Health Registration

or email UNC_IPE@unc.edu

OFFICE OF THE PROVOST

Interprofessional Education and Practice

